NINTH YEAR
OREGON '77

2002 Pac-10 Coach of the Year 2002 Naismith Finalist

Five postseason appearances. A Pac-10 title and a Pac-10 tournament title. The NCAA Elite Eight. Two NIT Final Fours. Three NBA First Round Draft choices.

In just eight years, 2002 Pac-10 Coach of the Year Ernie Kent has taken the University of Oregon to heights not seen since Basketball Hall of Famer Howard Hobson was the Tall Firs' head coach.

He is the only man to have led Oregon to three NCAA Tournament appearances, as well as Pac-10 regular season and tournament titles.

He is the only coach in the Northwest to take his team to the NCAA Elite 8 this decade.

He is a combined 49-13 versus all teams in the Pacific Northwest, including a 35-11 mark against Pac-10 rivals Oregon State, Washington and Washington State.

His eight wins over UCLA are twice as many as any other Oregon coach and represent a third of Oregon's all-time wins (24) against the most storied program in the nation.

His 149 wins rank fourth all-time at Oregon.

He has granted Oregon a place on the national and international basketball landscape through his involvement with USA Basketball, winning a pair of gold medals in 2001 and 2003.

Kent in the Postseason

Not only has Ernie Kent been a regular in the postseason as a coach, once there, his teams have had remarkable success. He has been to 10 postseason tournaments in the last 17 years as a head or assistant coach, and his teams have posted an impressive 19-10 record.

Education: B.A. in Community Service and Public Affairs, Oregon, 1977; Rockford West (Ill.) High School, 1973

In addition to his 2002 league coach of the year honors, the NABC, USBWA and Basketball Times all recognized him as their district coach of the year, and he was one of 20 Naismith Coach of the Year finalists.

Overall, Oregon averages nearly 20 wins per season under Kent and has sent four players into the NBA Draft.

Among Kent's pupils are Pac-10 Player of the Year and Tournament MVP Luke Ridnour (2003), first team All-Pac-10 players Alex Scales (2000), Bryan Bracey (2001), Frederick Jones (2002), Ridnour (2002-03) and Luke Jackson (2003-04), the Pac-10 Freshman of the Year (Ridnour, 2001), All-Pac-10 freshmen Ridnour (2001), Jackson (2001), Aaron Brooks (2004), Malik Hairston (2005) and Bryce Taylor (2005) and NBA Draft choices

Bracey (2001), Jones (2002), Ridnour (2003) and Jackson (2004).

The success Kent has enjoyed at Oregon has resulted in his ascension to third among the conference's active leaders in wins and is by far the head of the class in that category among the Northwest schools. Yet the simple plan that has produced those accomplishments is this:

First as a player at Oregon and now as the school's 18th head coach, the one thing that has remained unchanged is the passion Ernie Kent professes for a program that has molded his life far beyond anything you can pick up on a basketball court. The Ducks' success under Kent originates from the belief that he and his players can accomplish any goal working together as a team at the University of Oregon.

Upon his return to the university as coach, it took little time for that renewed passion to take hold on Eugene and the surrounding community, which longed for a return to the days when the Kamikaze Kids whipped fans into a frenzy. The Rockford, Ill., native became the first African-American head coach in the history of University of Oregon athletics when he was named to the post April 10, 1997.

In his first year, he worked wonders as the Ducks finished in a tie for fifth-place in the Pac-10 and just missed a winning record (13-14) and a postseason berth in 1997-98. He followed that with a trip to the NIT final four in 1998-99 before the next season laid the foundation for the current era that has witnessed Oregon's ascension to the upper echelon of the Pac-10.

The Ducks reached 22 victories in 1999-00 for the first time since 1944-45 and with their NCAA Tournament bid, made back-to-back postseason appearances for the first time in 23 years. That season allowed Oregon to collect the best recruiting class in the league, led by Luke Jackson and Luke Ridnour, and that recruiting class, in turn, set the table for a magical run in 2001-02.

That season, Kent directed Oregon to its first outright league title since 1938-39, going 14-4 and leading a record six Pac-10 teams into the NCAA Tournament. The Ducks advanced to the Elite Eight for the first time since 1960, defeating Montana, Wake Forest and Texas along the way. His team went 16-0 at McArthur Court and 26-9 overall.

In addition to his league coach of the year honors, the NABC, USBWA and Basketball Times all recognized him as their district coach of the year, and he was one of 20 Naismith Coach of the Year finalists. The 14 Pac-10 victories were the most in school history and tied the school's all-time league mark. And he watched Oregon set 11 school and two Pac-10 single-season records, while Fred Jones was a NBA First Round selection by the Indiana Pacers.

The following year, Kent led the Ducks to their first Pac-10 Tournament title in 2002-03 with a 23-10 record. That season also saw him coach Pac-10 Player of the Year and Tournament MVP Luke Ridnour, as the Ducks won 20 games in back-to-back seasons for the first time in 64 years, and made consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances for the first time in 42 years.

The 2003-04 season may have been Kent's finest coaching yet. Despite losing his point guard to injury for 10 games during the heart of the Pac-10 season, the Ducks regrouped the final month of the year to tie for fourth in the league with an 18-12 overall record, and advanced to the NIT final four with two heart-stopping wins over Colorado and Notre Dame along the way.

Kent's broad-reaching involvement on a national scale is hard to rival as he continues to push Oregon to the forefront of the nation's college basketball scene.

Recent years have seen him as the head coach of USA Basketball's Junior National team, a squad he guided to a 7-1 record and a fifth place finish at the 2003 FIBA World Championships in Greece. Kent also coached the juniors to a gold medal at the 2003 Global Games. He serves on the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) Board of Directors and the Wooden Award's Board of Governors.

He was also an assistant coach for the 2001 USA Basketball 21-and-Under national team that won the gold medal at the summer games in Japan with a 8-0 record.

As the head coach at Saint Mary's College in Moraga, Calif., from 1991-92 to 1996-97, Kent put together a 90-80 ledger, including a 23-8 mark in 1996-97 and a berth in the NCAA Tournament. The tournament bid, the first at the school since 1989, was the result of the Gaels' fourth conference title in school history. Kent also guided the Gaels to an 18-10 ledger in 1994-95 and still ranks second on the all-time win chart at Saint Mary's.

Kent served as an assistant at Stanford under Mike Montgomery for two years (1990-91), helping the Cardinal advance to the NIT both years and winning the NIT title in 1991.

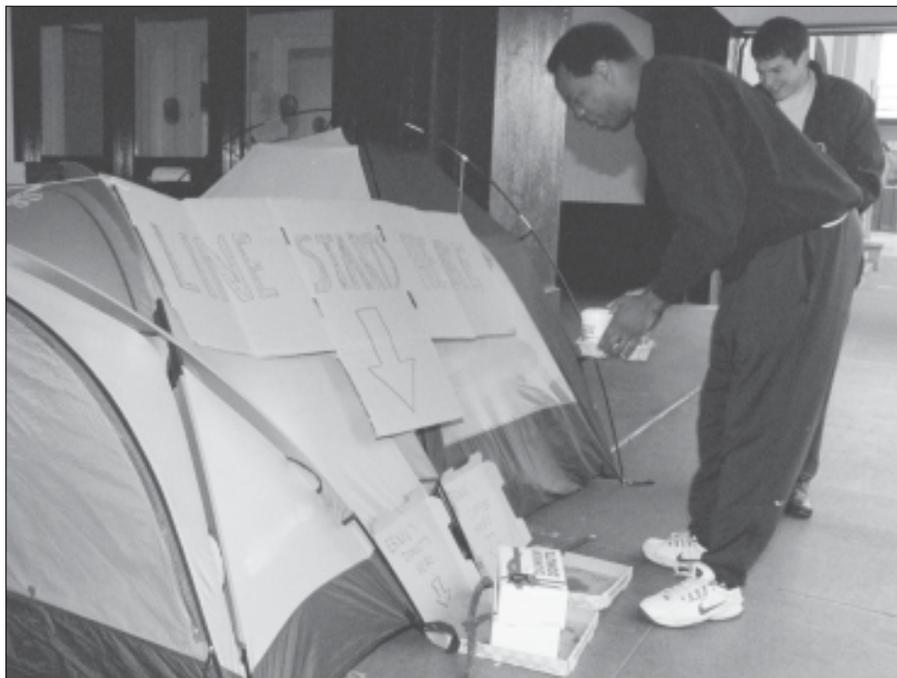

As an assistant to Boyd Grant at Colorado State (1988-1989), he aided the Rams in their postseason bids in the 1988 NIT (advancing to the semifinals) and 1989 NCAA Tournament second round after clinching the Western Athletic Conference championship.

From 1980 through 1987, Kent and his family lived in Saudi Arabia where he coached the al-Khaleej Club in Sayhat for three years, helping the team advance to the playoffs each year. He also worked for the Arabian American Oil Company in Dhahran.

Kent, 50, began his coaching career at his alma mater in 1977 as the freshman coach under Dick Harter and again assisted in 1979 as an understudy to Jim Haney. In between, he coached Eugene's O'Hara Catholic School for one season.

One of his ongoing areas of concern is the well-being of his student-athletes after graduation. His Self-Improvement Program, first implemented while working as an assistant at Colorado State and entering its seventh year in Eugene, helps with the transition once a student-athlete has graduated from Oregon. This program has received national attention in the NCAA News (Feb. 3, 1993), the National Association of Basketball Coaches Magazine (March, 1993), on College Sports Today on CBS Radio and in an issue of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) Magazine.

He was recognized for his commitment to community service by the Oregon Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, who bestowed Kent with the 2004 Hope Award.

Coach Kent delivered coffee and doughnuts to students who camped out for games at Mac Court.

Kent is also the local honorary chairman of the Children's Miracle Network and is active with the American Cancer Society and the Coaches Versus Cancer campaign. Additionally, Kent is a regular participant in Eugene-area activities during each February's Black History month.

A 1977 graduate of Oregon with a degree in community service and public affairs, Kent helped lead the Ducks to a No. 8 ranking as a sophomore and earned the Outstanding Service Award for community service and picked up the March of Dimes Outstanding Achievement Award. He completed his collegiate career averaging 7.1 points and 1.8 rebounds while playing with the likes of Greg Ballard, Stu Jackson and Ron Lee.

A Parade Magazine All-American in 1973 at Rockford, Ill., West High School, he was also named Scholastic All-America by Scholastic Magazine. A National Honor Society member, he received the American Legion Outstanding Achievement Award and was named all-state in Illinois.

Born Jan. 22, 1955, Kent and his wife Dianna have three children: sons Marcus (1-29-83) and Jordan (7-24-84), who plays basketball, football and runs track for the Ducks, and daughter McKenzie (6-6-86). All three Kent children are UO students.

SCOTT DUNCAN

ASSISTANT COACH

SIXTH YEAR

COLLEGE OF WOOSTER '78

Recognized as one of the nation's best assistant coaches and top recruiters, Scott Duncan's hard work and dedication has paid off with consecutive bids to the NCAA Tournament followed by the NIT Final Four during recent years. That investment continues to pay off with all four freshmen in the recruiting class of 2004 ranked among the nation's top 75.

Now in his sixth year with the Ducks, Duncan was recently named the eighth-best assistant coach in the country by Hoop Scoop, and was recognized as one of the nation's top 25 recruiters by Rivals.com. In 2001, he was noted as one of the hardest working assistant coaches and one of the nation's best recruiters in a pair of surveys compiled by Rivals.com's Dave Telep.

During the summers of 2002-03, he was an assistant on Ernie Kent's USA Basketball Junior National team trials camp staff.

Duncan gives Oregon a nationally recognized reputation that he has accumulated over 25 years as a major college basketball assistant coach.

The 50-year-old Columbus, Ohio, native has been associated with Division I programs that have advanced to postseason play 14 of the past 20 seasons. Oregon's 2002 NCAA Elite Eight run marked the first time in his coaching career that his team advanced to the NCAA Tournament.

Duncan was first introduced to the legacy of Oregon basketball while working a summer camp at McArthur Court under former head coach Dick Harter in 1977.

He officially joined the Ducks' coaching staff in 2000 after spending the previous three seasons under Larry Shyatt, assisting Wyoming to its first postseason berth in seven campaigns in 1997-98 before moving with Shyatt to Clemson the following year. During 1998-99, Duncan helped coach the Tigers to their seventh 20-win season (20-15) in school history, while working with ACC scoring leader Terrell McIntyre. He played a major role in the school signing four of the nation's top 100 recruits.

Encompassing a span that began with a two-year stint at Washington State during the 1995-96 season, Duncan has helped attract recruiting classes that have been recognized among the top 25 in the country seven of the last 10 years, including Oregon's 2003 class (No. 15).

Graduating with an undergraduate degree in physical education and economics from the College of Wooster, Ohio, in 1978, the three-year letterman began his coaching career as a part-time assistant for Ray Dieringer at Cleveland State in 1978-79. Two years later, he joined head coach Gary Colson at New Mexico for a 10-year tenure, which included a pair of NIT wins over Oregon in 1988 and '90. Duncan also spent time with Colson at Fresno State and then four years at Northern Illinois (1991-92 through 1994-95) under Brian Hammil prior to his stops at Washington State (head coach Kevin Eastman), Wyoming and Clemson.

Born Sept. 18, 1955, Duncan is an avid runner who runs up to 40 miles a week.

KENNY PAYNE

ASSISTANT COACH
SECOND YEAR
LOUISVILLE '03

A member of the 1986 NCAA champion Louisville Cardinals, Kenny Payne joined the Oregon staff in the summer of 2004.

Payne, 38, is a veteran of 10 professional basketball leagues worldwide, including a four-year stint with the NBA's Philadelphia 76ers.

He came to Louisville from Northeast Jones High School in Laurel, Miss., where he was a Parade All-American and the state's player of the year.

At Louisville, he scored 1,083 points and shot 40 percent from three-point range during his four-year career. His best year was his senior season when he averaged 14.5 points and 5.7 rebounds per game, and was named to the All-Metro Conference team.

After Payne finished his eligibility at Louisville in 1989, he embarked on an 11-year professional career that would take him to nine countries on five different continents. He was a

The next several seasons saw Payne play in the Continental Basketball Association (Tri-Cities, Wash.) and overseas in Italy, Japan, Brazil, the Philippines, Cypress, China and Argentina. He finished his professional career in 2000 following a season with Team Taipans of Cairns, Australia.

Payne then returned to Louisville to complete his education, and became one of the first success stories of Louisville's Cardinal Degree Completion Program, which was started in 2000 to help former UL student-athletes complete their degrees. More than 14 years after playing his final game in a Louisville uniform, Payne earned his bachelor's of science degree in sport administration in 2003.

Education: Master's Degree, Loyola-Chicago, 1994; B.A. in History, Northwestern, 1992; Nitro (W.Va.) High School, 1987

Coaching Career - 14th Year: Assistant Coach, Oregon (2005-present); Director of Basketball Operations, Oregon (2001-05); Assistant Coach, Oregon (1998-01); Assistant Coach, St. Mary's (1997); Assistant Coach, Solano (Suisun City, Calif.) Community College (1995-96); Assistant Coach, William Rainey Harper (Palatine, Ill.) College (1993-94)

He has been a part of 149 UO wins, four NCAA tournament appearances and two NIT final fours, in addition to the 2002 season that saw the Ducks win their first outright Pac-10 title in 63 years and advance to the NCAA Elite Eight.

Hudson was Oregon's Director for Basketball Operations from 2001-05, a position he held following his first stint as an assistant for the Ducks from 1998-01.

Hudson, 36, began his association with Ernie Kent as the restricted earnings coach at Saint Mary's during the 1996-97 season. In addition to his coaching duties at the Moraga, Calif., school, Hudson's responsibilities included film/video exchange, summer camps, team travel, and monitoring the academic progress of the basketball team.

Prior to his hiring at Saint Mary's, Hudson was an assistant coach for two seasons at Solano Community College in Suisun City, Calif. His primary responsibilities at SCC revolved around post player development, opponent scouting, evaluating and recruiting high school student-athletes, and designing the team's media guides and game programs.

As an assistant coach at William Rainey Harper College in Palatine, Ill., a position he held from May 1992 through August 1994, Hudson worked as the assistant director of the school's summer basketball camp and the Summer High School Basketball League in 1992 and 1993.

The Nitro, W.Va., native earned a degree in history from Northwestern in 1992 and was the program assistant/team manager for the Wildcats for two seasons. As a member of the Northwestern program, he assisted the coaching staff with on-campus recruiting, directed the team film/video exchange program and supervised a seven-person managerial staff. Hudson then went on to earn his master's degree in curriculum and instruction from Loyola of Chicago in 1994.

Born Feb. 21, 1969, Hudson married the former Jill Walker during the summer of 2001. The couple have one daughter, Hanna (8-12-04).

A skilled fisherman, Hudson can often be found plying the rivers of Oregon for salmon, trout and steelhead.

In 58 career games for the Ducks, Rosemond averaged 4.3 points per contest and connected on 60-of-162 three-point attempts (37.0 percent).

Following his collegiate career, Rosemond played professionally in Brazil for two years.

Rosemond, 28, was hired by Portland State in the spring of 2005 as an assistant, but could not pass up the opportunity to return to his alma mater.

JIM RADCLIFFE

STRENGTH AND CONDITIONING COACH
18TH YEAR
PACIFIC (ORE.) '80

Jim Radcliffe, Oregon's strength and conditioning coach for the last 18 seasons, plays a significant role in the Ducks' basketball program as the designer of the year-round development calendar.

Radcliffe furnishes the student-athletes with a wide variety of exercise through weight training and lifting systems and is a noted authority in the field of exercises dealing with the improvement of speed and quickness.

The 47-year-old native of McCloud, Calif., was the assistant strength coach at Oregon for two years before assuming the duties of head coach in that area. Radcliffe taught and coached sports and was the athletic trainer for six years at Aloha High School.

He then did graduate study at Colorado and worked in private business before joining the Ducks' staff. Graduating from Pacific (Ore.) in Forest Grove, he played four seasons at defensive back and was captain of the special teams. He earned his Master's in biomechanics from Oregon in 1992.

Radcliffe is active in national organizations surrounding his profession and is certified by the United States Weightlifting Federation. He has also written books, has been published in numerous professional journals.

KIM TERRELL
 ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR,
 ATHLETIC MEDICINE
 10TH YEAR
 OREGON '83

Kim Terrell returned to her alma mater in 2003 following an eight-year stint as Director of Sports Medicine at Northeastern University in Boston.

Terrell was hired by the Ducks in October 2003 and assists with the UO's athletic medicine department.

At Northeastern, she oversaw the sports medicine program, and supervised a five-person athletic training staff.

She is on her second tour of duty with the Ducks, as she was an assistant athletic trainer from 1988 to 1995 before moving east.

Terrell earned her bachelor's (1981) and master's (1983) degrees from Oregon in exercise and movement science. After graduation, she took a job as the director of athletic training at The Sport Medicine Clinic in Seattle from 1983 to 1985. She then was hired as an athletic trainer at Sports Injuries and Running Clinic from 1985 to 1988 before returning to Oregon.

Terrell is a member of the National Athletic Trainers Association and a past member of the NATA's Board of Certification.

 ATHLETIC MEDICINE
 12TH YEAR
 INDIANA '56

The health and well-being of all Oregon varsity student-athletes rests in the capable hands of Dr. Robert Crist.

In his 12th year with the Ducks as the team doctor, Crist was hired in the fall of 1994. He established his practice in Eugene in 1965 after graduation from Indiana, and practiced in Eugene until deciding to devote his medical attention to Duck athletes.

He was chief of staff at Sacred Heart General Hospital (1983-85) and medical director in the emergency room there for six years until 1992. He has also served as president of the Lane County Medical Society (1975-76). His association with athletics began as Churchill High School's team doctor in the late 1960s and continued through the 1970s.

A native of Springfield, Ohio, Crist graduated with a B.A. in anatomy and physiology with Phi Beta Kappa honors at Indiana and also received his M.D. at Indiana Medical School in 1961.

He began his family practice in Eugene in 1965 after two years in the U.S. Public Health Service.

CLAY JAMIESON
 ASSISTANT
 ATHLETIC TRAINER
 EIGHTH YEAR
 ARIZONA '94

Veteran athletic trainer Clay Jamieson is in his eighth year with the Oregon basketball program. Providing the best preventative care and post-injury rehabilitation available in Oregon's state-of-the-art athletic training complex, Jamieson's daily responsibilities encompass virtually every aspect of injury maintenance, management and rehabilitation for Oregon's basketball and men's track and field athletes.

Jamieson added to his experience by serving as the head trainer of USA Basketball's Junior National team that competed at the 2003 World Championships in Greece.

He is also an integral part of Oregon's nationally recognized athletic training graduate program, providing experienced supervision and tactical clinical instruction for the Ducks' graduate student athletic trainers. Jamieson himself is a 1996 Master's graduate of UO's athletic training program.

Jamieson attended Yavapai College in Prescott, Ariz., for two years, earning an Associate of Arts degree in 1990, before moving to the University of Arizona where he earned a Bachelor's in Exercise Science in 1994. The former baseball letterman at Yavapai worked for four years as a student athletic trainer at Pima Community College in Tucson providing athletic training for student-athletes in 10 sports.

Prior to his return to Eugene, he spent two years at Pepperdine, working with the men's basketball, women's volleyball and baseball programs. A certified member of the National Athletic Trainers Association since 1994, he is also American Red Cross certified in CPR and first aid.

Jamieson and his wife Jan have one son, Braeden (born 5-01-01) and one daughter, Aubrey (born 9-24-01).

DR. KEN SINGER
 TEAM PHYSICIAN
 30TH YEAR
 M.I.T. '61

A well-respected physician and orthopaedic surgeon, Dr. Ken Singer is in his 30th year of association with the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Earning his undergraduate degree from M.I.T. in 1961 and his MD from Columbia in 1965, Singer has been an adjunct associate professor in the University of Oregon's physical education department since 1975.

The U.S. Air Force veteran has also been an instructor and professor for Oregon Health Sciences University since 1977.

Professionally, Singer served as chief of surgery division at Sacred Heart General Hospital in Eugene from 1981-85 and was that hospital's chief of medical staff from 1991-93. He has served on committees for the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons.
