FROHNMAYER

- University President
- 12th Year
- Harvard '82

Dave Frohnmayer, a nationally recognized leader in higher education, is the 15th president of the University of Oregon, the state's 129-year-old center for liberal arts, science and professional studies. He assumed the presidency on July 1, 1994.

Under Frohnmayer's leadership, the university embarked on a sweeping set of new initiatives designed to guide the UO into the future, doubled its number of endowed chairs, increased curricular offerings, improved student-faculty ratios and increased annual giving by 50 percent. During his tenure, the Oregon Campaign, the most ambitious fund-raising drive in the state's history, attracted more than one-quarter billion dollars—$255.3 million—for UO scholarships, faculty support, programs and facilities.

A noted legal author and scholar, Frohnmayer served as dean of the University of Oregon's School of Law from 1992-94 before his appointment as president. He was Oregon's attorney general from 1981-91 and represented Oregon before the U.S. Supreme Court, personally winning six of seven cases. He served as president of the National Association of Attorneys General for and received that organization's prestigious Wyman Award as the state attorney general who best exemplifies the goals of the office. Prior to that, he was a UO professor of law from 1971-80 and represented District 40 (south Eugene and Goshen) in the Oregon House of Representatives for three two-year terms beginning in 1975.

A Medford native, Frohnmayer lives in Eugene with his wife, Lynn, and three children. Dave and Lynn Frohnmayer are founders of the Fanconi Anemia Research Fund, Inc., based in Eugene. This foundation funds path-breaking genetic research and sponsors an annual one-of-a-kind international symposium. They are also founders of the Fanconi Anemia support group for similarly afflicted families worldwide, and he is one of the founding directors of the national Marrow Donor Program.

Frohnmayer is the recipient of numerous awards, including the UO's Pioneer Award for outstanding leadership; the Oregon Association of Broadcasters' Tom McCall Award; the Outstanding Educator of America Award; Lewis and Clark College's Aubrey R. Watzek Award; and, with his wife Lynn, the Providence Child Care Center's Heart of Gold Award and the 1998 Eugene First Citizen Award.

A constitutional law expert, he is a Phi Beta Kappa 1962 graduate of Harvard College and attended Oxford University as a Rhodes Scholar, where he earned bachelor's and master's degrees. In 1967, he received his law degree from the University of California.

WILLIAMS

- Assistant to the President for Intercollegiate Athletics
- 26th Year
- Oregon '62

Former University vice president Dan Williams is in the first year of his new assignment as assistant to the president for Intercollegiate Athletics. With 26 years at the University, Williams is now a valuable consultant to athletics director Bill Moos.

Prior to his retirement from full-time duties in the summer of 2005, Williams served as vice president for administration, a position he had held since 1983. Among his many duties, Williams directly supervised intercollegiate athletics.

Williams also presided over the department as director of athletics for 11 months in 1994-95, a period that will be remembered as one of unparalleled success with an appearance in the Rose Bowl and NCAA bids in both men's and women's basketball.

He selected his successor in May 1995 with the appointment of Bill Moos as athletics director and presided over an extensive study that resulted in the decision to add women's soccer, in a concerted effort of increasing the opportunity for women to participate and compete in intercollegiate athletics.

A political science major, the Astoria native graduated from Oregon in 1962, also serving as ASUO student body president his senior year. He received his master's degree in public administration from the University of San Francisco in 1980. Prior to coming to Oregon as director of housing and associate dean of students in 1980, he was a student affairs officer at Stanford University.

Williams serves on the Board of Directors of Oregon Forest Resources Institute, Volunteers in Medicine Clinic, Liberty Bank and Bi-Mart Corporation. He also serves as a consultant to the Papé Group. His community service activities include membership on the Oregon Health Services Commission.

Williams and his wife Maureen are the parents of three children.

O'FALLON

- Faculty Representative
- 10th Year
- Kansas State '68

The University of Oregon's faculty athletic representative is James O'Fallon, a member of the School of Law faculty since 1981.

As the Frank Nash professor at Oregon, O'Fallon teaches constitutional law and jurisprudence.

The native of Gunnison, Colo., and graduate of Kansas State University earned his law degree from Stanford in 1972. He passed the California bar exam in 1973, after which, he served as a law clerk for the Ninth Circuit's United States Court of Appeals.

Prior to coming to Oregon, O'Fallon served on the law faculties at the University of Richmond and the University of Detroit, and was a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellow at Harvard.

In addition to functioning on behalf of the university president and registrar to maintain institutional accountability and record keeping, he acts as the voting delegate in all NCAA and Pacific-10 Conference meetings and verifies academic eligibility for all of Oregon's student-athletes. O'Fallon served as the interim representative in 1986-87 when Chapin Clark took a leave of absence from the University.

His scholarly work, including a path-breaking article on Marbury v. Madison, focuses on constitutional history and theory and philosophy.

State Board of Higher Education

The Oregon State Board of Higher Education, the statutory governing board of the seven-campus Oregon State System of Higher Education, is composed of 11 members appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Oregon State Senate. Eight lay members are appointed for four-year terms, one faculty member is appointed for a two-year term and two members are students appointed for two-year terms. MOOS

- Director of Athletics
- 11th Year
- Washington State '73

The investments made by Bill Moos early in his tenure as athletics director paid off in recent years with trophies from his 2001 Pac-10 champion and Fiesta Bowl winning football team, his 2002 Pac-10 champion and NCAA Elite Eight men's basketball team, and his 2002 WNIT champion women's basketball team.

But while he has changed the landscape of University of Oregon athletics, both figuratively and literally, Moos certainly isn't resting on his laurels— Moos is leading the charge for construction of a new on campus basketball arena.

Merely a glance at the Autzen Stadium expansion, Ed Moshofsky Sports Center, Casanova Center, and adjacent playing fields offers the magnitude of the ever-changing facility enhancements underway in Eugene.

Oregon Under Bill Moos

- 521 Academic All-Conference Selections
- 24 Academic All-America Selections
- 7 NCAA Post Graduate Scholars
- 8 Bowl Games
- 9 Pac-10 Championships
- 1 Pac-10 Tournament Championship
- 10 NCAA Basketball Tournaments
- 5 NCAA Championship Events Hosted
- 6 Pac-10 Championship Events Hosted

A driving force behind the most successful era of the University's athletics department in recent memory, Bill Moos is in his 11th year as the ninth man to serve as Oregon's director of athletics.

Moos has been responsible for initiating more than $160 million in facility improvements at Oregon. In addition, he renewed the department's commitment to the future with the $90 million Autzen Stadium renovation completed in 2002 that added 12,000 new seats, 32 new suites, a new Club at Autzen and a new press box.

In 1998, Moos witnessed other steps forward with the opening of the $14.6 million Ed Moshofsky Sports Center and Papé and Kilkenny Fields project, as well as the installation of a $4 million Opto Tech Megavision scoreboard in Autzen Stadium. That same year, the department successfully underwent the NCAA certification process.

He has said that it's often harder to keep a successful program moving forward than turning one around on the down slide. Yet Moos has clearly positioned Oregon on top of its game as it continues to be a trend-setter in college athletic circles on and off the field.

All the 53-year-old Washington native has done is preside over nine football seasons that set many of Oregon's attendance records, provided outstanding, yet fiscally prudent, trips for the Ducks to the 1996 Cotton, 1997 Las Vegas, 1998 Aloha, 1999 Sun, 2000 Holiday, 2002 Fiesta, 2002 Seattle and 2003 Sun bowls, helped streamline the organization's structure, overseen record numbers in fund-raising and development each of the past nine years, and set in motion a number of facility enhancements.

Always looking for ways to increase revenue sources, Moos spearheaded a five-year, $3.7 million contract with ESPN Regional five years ago to become one of only six schools with such an arrangement, also helping fund an annual budget of now nearly $40 million.

Under Moos' tutelage, facility improvements have been a major priority. The department spent $3.5 million on McArthur Court in his first two years in updating the 78-year-old structure, including remodeling the outer hallways, as well as redesigning and modernizing the services for the student-athlete center.

Attendance has soared at McArthur Court in both men's and women's basketball the past nine years. In men's basketball, the excitement since hiring former Duck player Ernie Kent has reached a fever pitch, especially as the Ducks won their first outright league title in 63 years in 2001-02. Mac Court has attracted crowds in excess of 9,000 fans 37 times the past seven years. In women's basketball, Oregon was once led the Pac-10 in attendance (3,896). The Ducks successfully hosted the first and second rounds of the 2003 NCAA Tournament. That came on the heels of serving as host of the first Pac-10 women's tournament and winning the WNIT championship in 2001-02. In 1999-00, a record average of 5,852 fans attended games to watch the Ducks claim their second straight conference title.

However, Oregon's success under Moos has not been confined to football and basketball. Representatives from at least 10 of the Ducks' 18 intercollegiate sports have advanced to postseason play each of the past seven seasons, including 12 sports in 2004-05. And in the classroom, more than 500 UO student-athletes have earned Pac-10 all-academic honors during his tenure.

Then there's the icing on the cake: Oregon is one of only a handful of athletic departments nation wide that is self-sufficient. The UO athletic department generates enough revenue to cover its entire budget and does not take a single dollar from the University's general fund.

All that since he assumed the duties of director in July, 1995 after five successful years in the same position at the University of Montana.

Moos began his athletics career in 1982 as assistant athletics director at Washington State University and also served as the school's associate director (1988-90). The 1973 Washington State graduate was a Pacific-8 all-conference offensive lineman in 1972.

During his Montana tenure, he created an academic support program and hired its first athletic academic coordinator, developed a facility enhancement plan that created more than $4 million in improvements and lifted the school's fund-raising efforts to show a 300 percent increase in private and corporate gifts.

Earning the respect of his counterparts from across the country, he has twice served at the executive vice president of the Pac-10 council, in addition to a dozen other committee appointments, including the NCAA Football Issues, Rose Bowl Management, Pac-10 Revenue Sharing, Pac-10 Long Range Planning (chair), Pac-10 Men's Basketball Tournament (chair), Pac-10 Bowl, Pac-10 Championships, Pac-10 Compliance & Enforcement and Pac-10 Television.

At Washington State, he was director of development for 5½ years and associate director for nearly two years, supervising all external operations. Prior to that, he managed and owned private businesses in Washington and Oregon for eight years.

He was a student assistant football coach at Washington State for the 1973 season, then spent part of 1974 in Washington, D.C., serving as a government intern.

Raised on a wheat and cattle ranch in eastern Washington, Moos (1-3-51) attended high school in Olympia when his father served in the governor's cabinet.

Moos earned his B.A. degree in history and was a three-year letterman in football before concluding his collegiate career by playing in the East-West Shrine all-star game in San Francisco.

In 2004, Moos was recognized by his alma mater when he received the prestigious Washington State University Alumni Achievement Award. He's also been the recipient of the Convention and Visitors Association of Lane County Leadership Award (2004), The Oregonian's Top Five Most Influential People in the State of Oregon Sports (2003) and the General Neyland Lifetime Achievement Award, presented by the All-American Football Foundation (1999).

Preceding Moos as Oregon's director of athletics have been Leo Harris (1948-67), Len Casanova (1967-70), Norv Ritchey (1970-76), John Caine (1976-81), Rick Bay (1981-84), Bill Byrne (1984-92), Rich Brooks (1992-94) and Dan Williams (1994-95).

Moos and his wife Kendra have three daughters: Christa (9-25-80), Brittany (6-11-84) and Kaiti (1-6-95); and two sons, Bo (2-19-89) and Benjamin (5-7-98).

BAUMGARTNER

- Senior Associate AD/
Sr. Women's Administrator
- 17th Year
- USC '87

Now in her 17th year at Oregon, former Duck head women's golf coach Renee Mack Baumgartner was elevated to senior associate athletic director in the spring of 2002. She also serves as the Duck's senior women's administrator, a post she has held since the winter of 1999.

Administrative duties for Baumgartner, who was inducted into the National Golf Coaches Hall of Fame in January, 2004, include overseeing the Ducks' women's basketball, men's and women's golf, men's and women's tennis, women's lacrosse and volleyball programs, as well as facilities, events and operations, medical treatment, strength and conditioning, and student services (Life Skills program). In addition, she is the department's liaison to the Oregon School Activities Association (OSAA).

The Portland, Ore., native retired from her duties as head women's golf coach following the 2000 season after building Oregon into one of the nation's premier programs. The Ducks posted three top-14 finishes at the NCAA Championships in her final four seasons at the helm.

In 1997, Oregon finished seventh at the NCAA tournament while Baumgartner was rewarded with Pacific-10 Conference and Far West District Coach of the Year honors.

Baumgartner (3-19-65) began her coaching career at Oregon in 1987 and coached through the 1993 season, guiding the team to its first NCAA tournament appearance and 17th place in 1993. Afterwards, she served a two-year stint at her alma mater, USC, before beginning her second tour of duty in Eugene in 1995.

As an athlete, she was a four-year letterwinner on the Women of Troy golf teams which finished third and fourth nationally in 1986 and '87. As USC's head coach, she led the team to a second-place finish at the 1994 NCAA Championships, hosted by the University of Oregon at The Oregon Golf Club in West Linn.

She graduated from Southern California in 1987 with a degree in sports information/broadcast journalism. In 1989, she completed her master's degree requirements and in 1996 was awarded a Ph.D. from Oregon in educational administration.

Baumgartner is currently serving an appointment on NCAA Division I Management Council that runs through 2008. Additionally, she serves on a subcommittee that will focus on legislative review and interpretations.

She and her husband, Scott, a teacher and coach at Eugene's Sheldon High School, are the parents of two daughters, Ellie Mack (3-11-97) and Abby Mack (2-26-00).

HEEKE

- Senior Associate AD/
Chief of Staff
- 18th Year
- Albion '85

Now in his 18th year at Oregon, Dave Heeke serves the Athletic Department in the dual roles of senior associate athletic director and chief of staff. He has managed the Ducks' external operations for the past eight years.

Heeke (10-8-63) oversees Oregon's broadcasting, development, food services, marketing and promotions, media services, sponsorships, tickets and video offices within the department.

He also provides administrative guidance for the men's basketball, football, soccer and softball programs, acts as the department's radio and television liaison and handles football and basketball scheduling.

Among his many duties are the negotiation of the Ducks' television and radio packages, in conjunction with ESPN Regional, a multimillion dollar partnership now in its seventh year of managing the multimedia rights for the athletic department. Heeke has been at the forefront of marketing the athletic department and seeking new revenue streams for the program.

Included among those projects was the installation of the Opto Tech Megavision replay scoreboard in Autzen Stadium's west end zone in 1998, a $4 million project now called DuckVision. His efforts helped the Ducks pay for the board outright and maintain the advertising rights in-house.

Prior to being elevated to Senior Associate Athletic Director in 2002, Heeke also oversaw the Duck Athletic Fund and was responsible for a complete reorganization of the department's annual fund-raising efforts. Under his leadership, annual fund-raising totals increased from $3.6 to $7.8 million. After three years with the Duck Athletic Fund in Portland, Heeke assumed the duties of director of broadcasting and marketing and successfully combined the efforts as executive producer of the Oregon Sports Network to market the department's events, while generating record revenues for the University.

Heeke joined the Portland DAF office in 1988 to escalate the sale of season tickets and assist with community affairs on behalf of the athletic department in northern Oregon and southern Washington. He was elevated to co-director of the fund-raising office in 1989.

Heeke was assistant events coordinator at Michigan State before joining Oregon's staff. The former baseball and hockey player earned his undergraduate degree at Albion College in 1985 and a master's in athletic administration from Ohio State. He and wife Liz are parents of sons Ryan (6-29-93), Max (3-6-96) and Zach (9-11-97).

ESPN Plus is in the middle of a five-year contract with the University that will keep Oregon athletics on ESPN Plus through the 2007-08 season.

Under the five-year agreement, the subsidiary of ABC Inc., and Walt Disney World Corp., focuses on the growth of the athletic department's corporate sponsorship programs, providing sponsorship opportunities for radio, TV, promotions and signage.

The local ESPN Plus office is run by director of institutions Tim Roberts, a 1987 Oregon graduate and a previous regional director for the Oregon Duck Athletic Fund. Jere Hanks, a 1992 Oregon graduate, serves as senior account executive in Portland, while 1997 Kansas graduate Shelly Canada and 1991 Oregon graduate Achelle Frichette are Eugene-based account executives. Courtney Oversby, a 2000 Oregon graduate, is the sales assistant in Eugene.

OSN RADIO NETWORK

The Oregon Sports Network, in its 18th season of operation, continues to broadcast all University of Oregon men's and women's basketball and football contests, and coaches shows exclusively along its state-wide affiliate network.

Since its inception in 1987, as a means to promote all activities within the athletic department, the Oregon Sports Network has been known as one of the nation's pioneer in-house radio and television networks on the collegiate scene. This network airs over 90 radio and television broadcasts per year.

The cornerstones of the Oregon Sports Network are KUGN 590 in Eugene/Springfield and Newsradio KXL 750 in Portland. KUGN has been the Eugene broadcast partner for the last nine years, while KXL has been part of the network since its inception.

THE VOICE OF THE DUCKS

Veteran Oregon sportscaster Jerry Allen continues his role as the Ducks' popular radio play-by-play voice for the 19th season in addition to his weekday morning drive-time shift for radio station KUGN 590 in Eugene.

A graduate of Southern Oregon University, Allen has extensive play-by-play experience in high school and small college sports in southern Oregon, having been general manager and an on-air personality at KYJC Radio in Medford for eight years before moving to Eugene.

Allen also hosts the weekly Duck Sports Rap Show on OSN Tuesday nights and the Friday night Duck Talk radio show, as well as co-hosting Duck Calls every Tuesday morning with UO Athletics Director Bill Moos.

Joe Giansante

OSN TELEVISION NETWORK

For the eighth straight season, the Oregon Sports Network will provide live television coverage of several Duck basketball games. KEZI Sports Director Joe Giansante, a

Rob Closs

University graduate and former Duck mascot, handles the play-by-play duties for OSN TV programming, while UO letterman Rob Closs is the color commentator. Eugene's KEZI (9) in the southern Willamette Valley is the flagship station, and is joined on the television network by Comcast Cable (14) in the Portland area as well as KDRV-TV (12) in Medford, KDKF-TV (31) in Klamath Falls and Chambers Cable in Bend.

CREDENTIALS: Admittance to all areas of McArthur Court may be obtained with proper credentials. Requests for credentials must be made to assistant director of media services Greg Walker. Those qualifying for admittance for the entire season will be issued credentials in advance of the season. Visiting media can arrange for credentials through the visiting SID. Credentials granted to all others will be left at the will call window at McArthur Court, located in the northwest corner of the building on University Street, next to the entrance for Services for Student-Athletes. All requests should be made as far in advance as possible. Because of limited space, credentials will be granted at the discretion of the office of media services. Only outlets producing audited circulation or audience totals will be granted working credentials.

LOCATION: The press area at McArthur Court is the front row of the first balcony on the east side of the floor. Entrance is gained on the balcony level. Radio is located at the end of the scorer's table nearest their respective teams. Television positions are opposite the scorer's table.

FACILITIES: The press area at McArthur Court can accommodate 58 working members. Press video crews may shoot from the floor level or the platform in the first balcony on the west side when not occupied by live television cameras. Photographers are allowed behind the yellow out-of-bounds section at either the north or south ends of McArthur Court.

POST-GAME WORK AREAS: The old sports information office in McArthur Court has been remodeled and is available for working members of the news media. There are three collect or credit card only telephones available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

BROADCAST RIGHTS: All requests for radio and television rights, delayed and live, should be directed to Dave Heeke, Associate Athletic Director, External Operations at the University of Oregon at (541) 346-4483.

SERVICES: All members of the working press will be supplied with game program, statistics and press notes prior to the game. Final and halftime statistics will be furnished along with play-by-play sheets. Stat monitors will be provided for radio and television talent. Oregon also will assist with post-game quotes and in securing radio and television statisticians and helpers whenever possible.

TELEPHONES: Radio and television stations should make arrangements for their own telephones at McArthur Court. Oregon will have phones in the press room and media services office for use after the game for third-party, collect or credit card calls. Anyone wishing to install a telephone at McArthur Court should contact University Telecommunications (541-346-3198) for all services.

PARKING: A limited number of parking passes will be made available through the Oregon Media Services Office. Parking is located on University Street and east of McArthur Court, adjacent to Hayward Field. Parking will be determined at the discretion of the media services office.

INTERVIEWS: Post-game interviews with Coach Ernie Kent will be conducted in the interview room (B37) in the basement of McArthur Court. Oregon players will be available for interviews after an appropriate "cooling off" period. No player interviews will be conducted during the day of the game. Interviews will be scheduled around classes and practice. Contact the media services office to arrange interview time.

ROAD COVERAGE: Those media outlets who plan to cover the University of Oregon on the road may make credential requests through Greg Walker approximately one week prior to the trip.

COACH KENT INTERVIEWS: Contact Greg Walker at the Oregon media services office to set up interviews. Coach Kent is generally available weekday mornings in his office and after practice at McArthur Court.

COACH ERNIE KENT SHOW: Ernie Kent will do a weekly television show on KEZI - TV during the Pacific-10 Conference season as well as a weekly radio show on KUGN-AM. In addition, he does a pre-and post-game radio show for every game with "Voice of the Ducks" Jerry Allen on KUGN-AM.
