Pac-10 Year in Review

The 2007 Pac-10 women's soccer season was historic on many fronts, but none more important and exciting than USC winning the Pac-10's first-ever women's soccer national championship. The Conference now has at least one national championship in all 11 Pac-10-sponsored women's sports.

For the first time in Pac-10 history, two Conference teams advanced to the NCAA College Cup, as UCLA and USC were included in the last four teams standing. UCLA made its fifth-straight NCAA College Cup appearance, and sixth in program history (2000, 03-07). USC made its first-ever NCAA College Cup appearance, and in fact, prior to this season, had never advanced further than the second round of postseason play.

Since 1993, the first year that women's soccer was sponsored as a Conference sport, UCLA and Stanford had been the only Pac-10 teams to advance to the Final Four. California had three College Cup appearances in 1984, 87-88.

For the 10th-straight year, the Pac-10 sent at least four teams to the NCAA Tournament, as No. 1 seed UCLA, No. 1 seed Stanford, No. 2 seed USC and California all advanced to postseason play. The Bruins, with a perfect 9-0-0 mark in Conference games, earned their fifth- consecutive Pac-10 championship and the league's automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament. No other team in Pac-10 history has won five straight Conference championships.

The Pac-10 earned two of the four No. 1 seeds in the NCAA Tournament as both the Bruins and Cardinal took the top spot in the 64-team bracket. Penn State (Big Ten) and North Carolina (ACC) earned the other two No. 1 seeds.

With an 8-8-4 overall record (1-4-4, Pac-10), Oregon tied for seventh in the final league standings. Senior defender Dylann Tharp was named to the All-Pac-10 second team. Tharp finished her career as one of just eight players in school history with at least 70 career starts.

Oregon also had eight of its 11 starters earn Pac-10 all-academic status. Jessie Chatfield, Nicole Dobrzynski and Darcie Gardner were first team selections, Allison Newton and Dani Oster were second team picks and Tiffany Smith, Danielle Sweeney and Tharp were honorable mention selections.
