

THE OREGON EXPERIENCE

Celebrating its 131st anniversary, the University of Oregon has welcomed six generations of outstanding leaders since opening in 1876. Today's students, like the nearly 155,000 alumni before them, have access to the most current knowledge in classes, as well as laboratories and seminars conducted by leading researchers.

Ranked fifteenth in the country among public universities and sixth among "rising" public universities, the university is regarded as one of the "best buys" in higher education for its high quality and affordability. Two UO graduates are Nobel Prize honorees, ten have received Pulitzer Prizes, and eighteen have been named Rhodes Scholars.

UO students select courses from departments and programs in the College of Arts and Sciences, six professional schools and colleges, and the Graduate School. More than 1,650 teaching and research faculty members and 1,300 graduate teaching and research assistants serve as mentors, colleagues, and friends to the more than 20,000 undergraduate and graduate students enrolled at the UO.

A group of Lane County farmers and merchants donated their crops and wares to erect Deady Hall, the first UO structure, and to pay professors' salaries. Railroad magnate Henry Villard contributed funds to complete it. The second building on campus was constructed with public funds and named in Villard's honor. Designated National Historic Landmarks by the federal government, both still grace the campus.

Today, the university's physical plant consists of 337 structures on and off campus and is valued at more than $465 million.

The 295-acre Eugene campus is the state's center of liberal arts and sciences education, as well as one of the nation's best teaching and research institutions. Professional schools in architecture, business, education, journalism and communication, law, and music and dance complete the broad range of course offerings, with a total of 268 comprehensive academic programs available.

University science departments are winning national attention in biomechanics, computers, genetics, lasers, neuroscience, and nanotechnology.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON

The Lundquist College of Business has developed a major emphasis in entrepreneurship and sports marketing, and the College of Education, one of the best such programs in the nation, is home to a nationally recognized Institute on Violence and Destructive Behavior.

Among the Graduate School's many institutes and research centers are the internationally recognized Institute of Molecular Biology, the Oregon Institute of Marine Biology

on the southern Oregon coast, and the International Institute for Sport and Human Performance.

Even as the UO's academic and research programs grow, so does the university's representation of and commitment to diversity. Students of color constitute about 14 percent of the student body, and the university promotes increased diversity through such programs as the Office of Multicultural Academic Support, which provides academic and support services to minority students; the Associated Students of the University of Oregon Multicultural Center; and various initiatives, such as establishment of the Ethnic Studies Program. About 1,100 international students from eighty-one countries represent about 5 percent of the student body.

ACADEMICS

The University's seven professional schools and colleges offer programs that provide training to meet specific career goals. However, all programs require a substantial number of liberal arts courses in order to obtain a well-balanced education in addition to the skills necessary to challenge specific projects.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

The College of Arts and Sciences houses the state's only honors college, bringing together some of the most promising students and specially selected faculty members in a challenging academic program with carefully designed small classes and close advising.

Many of the college's departments enjoy national acclaim, including high rankings for the psychology curriculum and the forensics program. The National Science Foundation designated UO as one of the three original centers of excellence in Science.

The College also offers preparatory programs for the advanced study of engineering and law and health-related fields such as dentistry, medicine and pharmacology.

Academic Services

The athletics department addresses the primary objective of its student-athletes with the work of its academic support staff. The academic support team acts as a bridge between the student-athlete and campus resources, ensuring they are aware of and use the resources the University has to offer.

The function of the support team is to:

- Advise and assist student-athletes with academic, pre-professional and career problems
- Organize and monitor a structured study hall. All first-year students are required to attend study sessions four nights each week
- Trace academic progress using information on attendance and performance submitted in mid-term grade reports by faculty
- Provide individual and group tutoring and other study sessions among students with similar needs, assuring questions are answered properly
- Assist with resumes and sharpening job interview skills
- Encourage students to approach its members with problems and questions.

In addition to the academic support staff, the UO provides a variety of other resources that give students the personal attention needed, both inside and outside the classroom. Below are several programs that faculty and staff have developed to help new students succeed.

Early Orientation/Registration Program

The Office of Student Development coordinates the summer program that allows incoming students to register early for fall classes in a structured setting with advisers to help with the process. IntroDUCKtion even has a special full-day program for parents. It is designed to give the student an opportunity to obtain academic counseling at a time when advisers have more time for personal conferences. In addition, students can address their specific needs during that visit and also can become acquainted with the many services and features of the campus. The Office of Student Affairs also operates New Student Orientation, on-campus internships, parents' programs and honors and awards.

Freshman Seminars

Freshman Seminars courses offer new students an opportunity to learn in a personalized setting, to be challenged intellectually, to express their ideas freely, and to become better acquainted with faculty members and classmates. Only freshmen and first-term undergraduate transfer students can enroll in these seminars. Classes are limited to 20 students.

Freshman Interest Groups

Freshman Interest Groups are designed to allow incoming students complete university education requirements while focusing on an area of interest or possible major.

Students in each group share enrollment in three related courses. One of these classes will have a small enrollment to give a better opportunity to meet other students in the group. An experienced student serves as group leader and coordinates ongoing activities, such as study sessions and social events.

Office of Academic Advising/Student Services

The athletics department works closely with the academic advising office to face the challenges of college. Tasks such as choosing a major, planning course schedules and solving personal and academic problems are among those in which students can obtain assistance.

Students also can seek details on the National Student Exchange Program, which offers study opportunities at 174 institutions throughout the United States.

Academic Learning Services

The Center for Academic Learning Services has something to offer all students interested in improving their skills. Individual assistance is available in developing effective strategies for time and task management, textbook reading and note taking. The center also offers small classes in speed reading and preparing for graduate school admission tests such as the Graduate Record Examinations (GRE), Law School Admission Test (LSAT) and Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT).

Office of Multicultural Affairs

Academic and other support services provided by the Office of Multicultural Affairs include orientation, cultural activities and other types of activities annually for current and prospective students and faculty. Among its other special services are a mentor program that pairs students with faculty members, special composition and mathematics courses and tutors in a number of areas.

UO in Prestigious Company

The Association of American Universities (AAU) is an organization of research universities devoted to maintaining a strong system of academic research and education. It consists of sixty U.S. and two Canadian universities.

The primary purpose of the AAU is to provide a forum for the development and implementation of institutional and national policies promoting strong programs in academic research and scholarship and undergraduate, graduate, and professional education.

CITY OF EUGENE

The second-largest city in Oregon, Eugene enjoys the cultural advantages of a major city, yet the relaxed and unique atmosphere of a quaint college town. The campus is located a short distance from the city center and is easily accessible by foot, pedal power or public transportation.

Appropriately, bike paths and jogging trails criss-cross the city, catering to students' preferred mode of getting around the city of about 150,000 people. With the Springfield community just east of Eugene, the metro population tops 200,000.

Community support for University of Oregon athletics, by far the most popular game in town, is unparalleled. The Ducks have set numerous attendance records in recent years and are averaging a remarkable 90 percent capacity rate over the last 10 seasons.

Its ideal location between sea level and ski level is an attraction. Natural amenities within the city include the Willamette River running through the heart of the city, and the two picturesque buttes, Skinner and Spencer, that frame the city at its northern and southern ends.

Winter sports are close at hand, and so are the miles of unspoiled beaches and many coastal lakes. Residents are drawn to Eugene by an excellent school system and progressive city government. Clean air and clean water are qualities that Eugeneans value.

Within Eugene are more than 70 parks and recreation facilities to provide open space and organized programs for all ages. Miles of bike paths, jogging trails, hiking trails, gardens, river walks and other outdoor opportunities enable citizens and visitors to take advantage of the area's natural assets.

The University of Oregon contributes immeasurably to the life of the city, bringing an endless schedule of major cultural, educational and sports activities to the area. There are also many indoor cultural, leisure, education and entertainment activities available year around.

For example, the nationally-acclaimed Hult Center for the Performing Arts is a $22 million facility with two halls (2,500 and 500 seats) that enable Eugeneans to enjoy a broad spectrum of entertainment from opera to rock concerts.

Eugene's primary industry remains lumber and wood products. However, there is increasing diversification to other types of business and industry to create new jobs for a growing and vibrant population.

Oregon is lofty snow-covered mountains and white, sandy beaches. It is fertile green valleys and plains. Oregon has the most up-to-date cities amid hamlets reminiscent of early frontier days. The state is raging rivers, trickling brooks, mountain lakes, dramatic deserts and the powerful Pacific Ocean.

If America is a land of immigrants, Oregon is the end of the rainbow for people who traveled west and found a land too beautiful and promising to leave. There's an overpowering presence of things green in Oregon. The grass is green. The valleys are green. The towering trees are green. Everything is fresh, alive, growing. Then, too, there are the beaches. Miles of pure, white sand. And the mountains ... Hood, Bachelor, the Three Sisters and more. You can ski the slopes and hike the trails. To some there's a bit of paradise in fishing a mountain-fed lake. In Oregon, some people gaze out their living room window to the majesty of a snow-capped peak.

Oregon's rivers share in the magnetism. There's the mighty Columbia, starting as a trickle in Canada and the building to one of the nation's most scenic waterways as it races to the ocean, defining the Oregon and Washington boundary.

The salmon-crowded Rogue River in southern Oregon draws its share of sportsmen, as well as sight-seers. For others, no river matches the McKenzie, which meets the scenic Willamette in Eugene on its meandering journey through Oregon's evergreen forests.

To most residents, a large part of Oregon's magic stems from the fact that their jobs and homes are right in the middle of nature's giant playground. Recreation is only a small stride from your doorstep. Recreation here isn't a weekend thing or 50 weeks of backbreaking work for two weeks of vacation half a world away. It's available seven days a week in Oregon.

The state's recreation pursuits are rewarding and educationally stimulating for University of Oregon students. In the Eugene area, the recreational diversity is almost limitless. There is snow skiing and backpacking in the nearby Cascade Mountains. Water skiing is just minutes away. White water float trips down rushing mountains streams are a common undertaking. Bike paths are everywhere, and there are almost 50,000 bikes in Eugene alone

MOUNT HOOD

Spanish sailors in search of a northwest passage were the first Europeans to see what is known today as Oregon. Settlers traveling in wagon trains over the Oregon Trail in the 1840s followed the missionaries who had come in the 1830s. Oregon was admitted as the 33rd state in 1859. Oregon is a state of great natural beauty with places such as Crater Lake National Park and the Columbia River Gorge. Its mountains, covered in forests, make Oregon the leading state in the production of wood products. The state flower is the Oregon grape, and the capital is Salem. The origin of the state's name is unknown, but one theory holds that it may have come from the Wisconsin River, shown in a 1715 French map as "Ouaricon-sint."

— equalling one bike for every two people. Dubbed Track City U.S.A., it's unquestionably the running capital of the world, and jogging trails abound.

Fishing is one of Oregon's most popular sports. The Pacific Ocean and deep-sea fishing for ocean salmon is an hour away. And, the rainbow trout greet anglers in the McKenzie every spring. Oregon is a fisherman's paradise, capable of measuring up to the wildest fish stories.

On the ruggedly beautiful and uncrowded beaches of the Oregon Coast, beach campfires and nighttime hot dog roasts signal a pleasant good evening to splashing, Frisbee tossing and beach browsing of the day. There are oceanside crab feeds and beachcombing along Oregon's 400 miles of rugged shoreline. Private coves and inlets beg to be explored.

Golf is played at a feverish pitch by young and old Oregonians alike. The state has more golf courses per capita than any other U.S. state. Every inch of the 400-mile coast line is publicly-owned. Oregonians live next to 227 state parks and 13 national forests.

Oregon's state of the art locker room was completed in 2003 and boasts three 60" plasma panels that can be utilized for video or X-Box. The $3.2 million project is internet friendly and each locker is equipped with an HVAC air-flow ventilation system.

ATHLETIC MEDICINE AND REHABILITATION

Oregon maintains two full-service treatment centers at the Casanova Center and McArthur Court and both are fully equipped facilities containing whirlpools, hot pack cabinets, an electric galvanic simulator and diathermy, ultrasound and rehabilitation exercise equipment.

The staff of physicians and surgeons relish being part of the team and are available for consultation whenever necessary.

In addition to team physician Robert Crist, specialists from Eugene's Orthopedic and Fracture Clinic are among more than 20 medical and dental specialists, oral surgeons and optometrists that serve Oregon's student-athletes.

Six full-time certified athletic trainers and nine graduate students staff the athletic treatment centers. Also, the Student Health Center is easily accessible to student-athletes.

STUDENT HEALTH CENTER

Basic medical and nursing care, treatment for sports-related injuries and limited physical therapy is available to all registered students at the Student Health Center.

Visits to the center's physicians are free of charge and laboratory and X-ray services are provided for a reasonable fee. The center also has a registered pharmacy and offers immunization clinics. The staff is composed of doctors, psychiatrists, nurses, nurse practitioners, lab technicians and other support personnel.

ERB MEMORIAL UNION

Located at the heart of the campus, the Erb Memorial Union provides a multitude of services for students. Currently, there are four different eateries with menus ranging from deli sandwiches and hamburgers to fish and chips and lasagna.

Numerous activities are coordinated through EMU offices, including all intramural and club sports, including baseball and crew. Billiards, bowling, a video arcade, computer lounge, barber shop, an ice cream parlor and copy services are located on the lower level.

Services at the main desk include check cashing, bus and airline tickets, concert tickets and payment of telephone and electric bills as well as film developing and automated bank services.

STUDENT RECREATION CENTER

The UO put $18 million into renovating the Student Recreation Center in 2001. Learn to climb on the rock wall, run on a suspended running track, shoot hoops on one of the three multi-sports courts, exercise on a variety of new fitness machines. Facilities include:

- Strength and conditioning area
- Suspended running track
- Multi-purpose courts
- Juice bar
- Climbing wall
- Remodeled locker rooms
- Artificial turf field
- Indoor tennis complex

There are study carrels on every floor and mandatory quiet hours are enforced. The sixth floor is designated as an academic pursuit area with strict quiet hours at all times. Special lectures and seminars often are sponsored.

Three balanced meals are served daily and the kitchen staff is happy to save a hot meal or pack a lunch if given advance notice. A snack bar offers beverages and small food items each night.

During the season, from mid-October to mid-March, the women's basketball team takes part in training table with menus carefully planned by strength and conditioning coaches, a nutritionist and the basketball coaching staff.

A recreation room contains table tennis and billiard tables, video games and a stationary bike. A television with cable service is located in the lobby of each floor. Activities such as talent shows, bands and weekend outings afford residents the opportunity to meet other students.

telephone and weekly floor has laundry facilities.

THE MOSHOFSKY CENTER

The University of Oregon took another step towards generating facilities unsurpassed in the Pacific-10 Conference, if not the nation, with the formal dedication of the Ed Moshofsky Sports Center in August 1998.

The first indoor practice facility on the West Coast became a reality, thanks in large part to Ed and Elaine Moshofsky, with the groundbreaking taking place in March 1997.

Ed was a 1943 Oregon business graduate and three-year starter as an offensive and defensive lineman, before breaking into the lumber business. He started Moshofsky Enterprises in 1951 and became CEO of Fort Hill Lumber Company before retiring in 1990. His wife was a 1947 Oregon State graduate and former school teacher.

Formulating ideas for the ideal facility by visiting several similar models throughout the country, the 117,000 square-foot spectacle was constructed for about $15 million, which also included two grass practice fields and one soccer competition field west of the Moshofsky and Casanova Centers.

The football practice fields have been named after Oregon graduate Pat Kilkenny, while the soccer field is named in honor of Randy and Susie Papé.

Spanning a height of 70 feet at its tallest point, the sparkling indoor facility includes a full-length artificial football surface, a synthetic four-lane 120-meter running track and the Duck Shop souvenir retail outlet. Not only is it the ideal solution for the University's football team to work out during inclement weather, but plays host to eight of the 16 intercollegiate sports.

An automated system of nets can be lowered within minutes to convert the structure into a batting cage for the women's softball team or provide a driving range for the men's and women's golf teams.

But the school's student-athletes aren't the only ones to benefit from this unique facility. On days in which the Ducks' football team is playing next door in Autzen Stadium, the Moshofsky Sports Center is converted into one of the largest indoor tailgate gatherings in the country. The building can hold up to 5,000 football fans before and after each home game.

Two years after its dedication, an expansion of the modern facility was completed to include an athlete lounge, additional meeting and storage facilities, an auxiliary medical treatment center, as well as upgraded catering services.

MO CENTER QUICK FACTS

Project: Indoor Practice Facility
Year Built: 1998
Fiscal: $14,800,000
Namesake: Former UO football player and long-time University supporter Ed Moshofsky
History: The first indoor practice facility in the Pac-10, it provides practice opportunities for the football, softball, soccer, track and golf teams.

THE CASANOVA CENTER

Named after Oregon's longtime football coach and athletic director, Len Casanova, the Casanova Center provides the football program with its largest improvement prior to the completion of the Moshofsky Sports Center.

Oregon also has improved its entire general operations with the housing of its entire staff on the second level of the facility since its opening during the summer of 1991.

Serving as the cornerstone of the 102,000 square foot facility is the expanded locker room for football and weight room accommodations for all sports. The cost of the two-story structure, which was formally dedicated on Sept. 27, 1991, exceeded $12 million and the entire Autzen improvement project hit nearly $18 million at its conclusion.

The completed locker room is almost four times the size of the previous facility. The project's lower level also includes a modern medical treatment area, practice accommodations for wrestling and equipment facilities for football and wrestling.

The upper floor contains offices for all of the department's coaches and administrators, conference rooms, audio/visual studios as well as exhibit and exposition centers for UO.

The Pittman Room is furnished with kitchen facilities and is utilized during the season for training table where the football player can enjoy the evening meal before departing the football complex.

The construction of sky boxes and the master skysuite atop the north rim of Autzen Stadium was a part of the beginning of the Autzen improvements. The three-tiered building was accompanied by a new press box constructed under the roof on the south side of the facility.

Ten corporate boxes, seating as many as 21 persons each, are leased for $30,000 per year for three years, plus a two-year option. Individual seating in the 350-seat master skysuite is available at $1,250 each.

The revenue from the sky boxes and master skysuite, projected to surpass $800,000 per year, was utilized to finance the construction of the Casanova Center along with sale of covered sponsor seats and gift-in-kind and cash contributions.
