UNIVERSITY OF OREGON

FOUNDED 1876

O

Celebrating its 132nd anniversary, the University of Oregon has welcomed six generations of outstanding leaders since opening in 1876. Today's students, like the nearly 155,000 alumni before them, have access to the most current knowledge in classes, as well as laboratories and seminars conducted by leading researchers.

Ranked fifteenth in the country among public universities and sixth among "rising" public universities, the university is regarded as one of the "best buys" in higher education for its high quality and affordability. Two UO graduates are Nobel Prize honorees, ten have received Pulitzer Prizes, and eighteen have been named Rhodes Scholars.

UO students select courses from departments and programs in the College of Arts and Sciences, six professional schools and colleges, and the Graduate School. More than 1,650 teaching and research faculty members and 1,300 graduate teaching and research assistants serve as mentors, colleagues, and friends to the more than 20,000 undergraduate and graduate students enrolled at the UO.

A group of Lane County farmers and merchants donated their crops and wares to erect Deady Hall, the first UO structure, and to pay professors' salaries. Railroad magnate Henry Villard contributed funds to complete it. The second building on campus was constructed with public funds and named in Villard's honor. Designated National Historic Landmarks by the federal government, both still grace the campus. Today, the university's physical plant consists of 337 structures on and off campus and is valued at more than $465 million.

The 295-acre Eugene campus is the state's center of liberal arts and sciences education, as well as one of the nation's best teaching and research institutions. Professional schools in architecture, business, education, journalism and communication, law, and music and dance complete the broad range of course offerings, with a total of 268 comprehensive academic programs available.

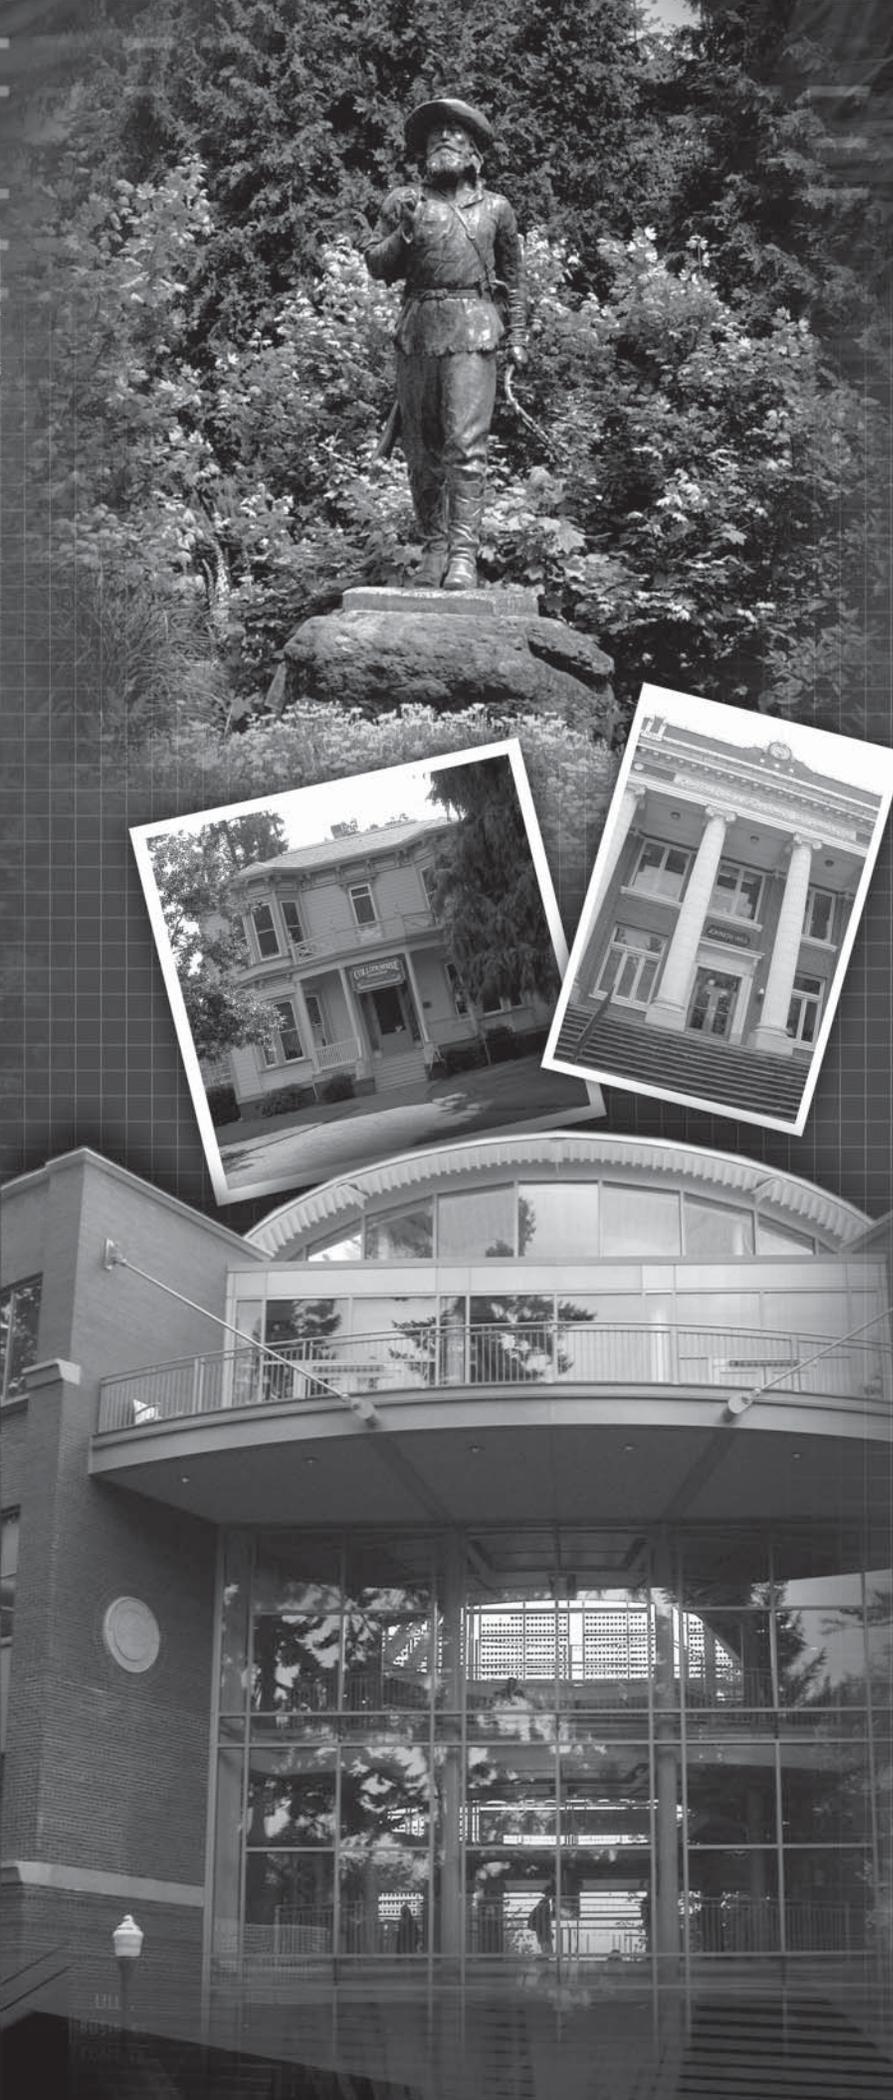

University science departments are winning national attention in biomechanics, computers, genetics, lasers, neuroscience, and nanotechnology.

The Lundquist College of Business has developed a major emphasis in entrepreneurship and sports marketing, and the College of Education, one of the best such programs in the nation, is home to a nationally recognized Institute on Violence and Destructive Behavior.

Among the Graduate School's many institutes and research centers are the internationally recognized Institute of Molecular Biology, the Oregon Institute of Marine Biology on the southern Oregon coast, and the International Institute for Sport and Human Performance.

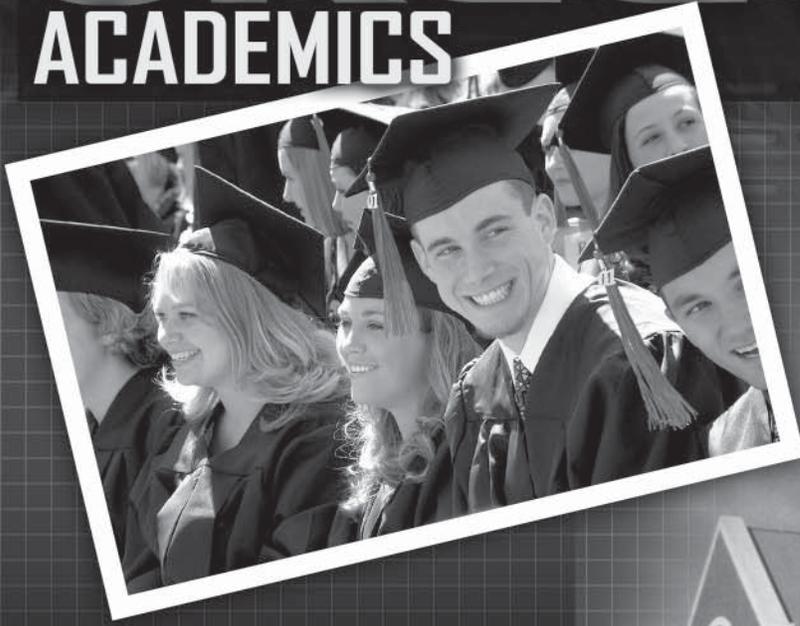

Even as the UO's academic and research programs grow, so does the university's representation of and commitment to diversity. Students of color constitute about 14 percent of the student body, and the university promotes increased diversity through such programs as the Office of Multicultural Academic Support, which provides academic and support services to minority students; the Associated Students of the University of Oregon Multicultural Center; and various initiatives, such as establishment of the Ethnic Studies Program. About 1,100 international students from eighty-one countries represent about 5 percent of the student body.

ACADEMICS

The University of Oregon has seven professional schools and colleges which offer programs that provide training to meet specific career goals. However, all programs require a substantial number of liberal arts courses in order to obtain a well-balanced education in addition to the skills necessary to challenge specific projects.

NUTRITION

James Harris III begins his second year at the University of Oregon as director of sports nutrition after a five-year tenure as coordinator of sports nutrition at the University of Nebraska. He oversees the implementation of nutrition plans for all sports, customizing specific preseason, competition and postseason nutritional programs to help ensure a healthy diet for all of Oregon's student-athletes.

He earned an undergraduate degree in nutritional science and dietetics from Nebraska in 2000, as well as a master's in nutrition and health sciences in 2004.

"From the moment I stepped on campus, it has been obvious to me that the goal of the department is to enhance the lives and abilities of student-athletes and win championships," Harris said. "The University of Oregon is a unique family-like atmosphere and provides an excellent opportunity to work with elite athletes and coaches."

The 29-year old registered dietitian has been a member of the American Dietetics Association since 2001, has been active in the International Society of Sports Nutrition since 2003, and has been involved with the Sports, Cardiovascular and Wellness Nutritionist Association since 2004.

HALL OF FAME

CITY OF EUGENE, OREGON.

The second-largest city in Oregon, Eugene offers amenities of a much larger community, yet the relaxed and unique atmosphere of a quaint college town. The campus is located a short distance from the city center and is easily accessible by foot, pedal power or public transportation. As "the world's greatest city of the arts and outdoors," Eugene offers many close-by recreation activities the cultural advantages of a major city.

Bike paths and jogging trails criss-cross the city, catering to students' preferred mode of getting around the city of some 153,000 people. With the Springfield community just east of Eugene, the metro population tops 240,000.

Eugene By The Numbers

Top 10 - Fodor's Travel Publications picked the Willamette Valley as one of the 10 "Choice Destinations" in the world.

Top 5 - Eugene's rank among college towns in the West by Sunset magazine.

#1 - Oregon's overall ranking among the 50 states in 256 categories of environmental health as evaluated by The Green Index.

#1 - The Green Guide, a respected consumer resource for green living, named Eugene America's #1 green city.

#4 - Eugene's rank by Sports Illustrated on Campus among all college towns in October, 2003.

#8 - Eugene's national rank by Rolling Stone among all college towns for its music scene, 2003.

Top 10 - Eugene's rank among U.S. cities for bicycling.

157 - Number of parks in Lane County

O

Community support for University of Oregon athletics, by far the most popular game in town, is unparalleled. The Ducks have set numerous attendance records in recent years and are averaging a remarkable 90 percent capacity rate over the last 10 seasons.

Natural amenities within the city include the Willamette River running through the heart of the city, and the two picturesque buttes, Skinner and Spencer, that frame the city at on the north and south.

The city's ideal location between sea level and ski level is an attraction. Winter sports are close at hand, and so are the miles of unspoiled beaches and many coastal lakes. Residents are drawn to Eugene by an excellent school system and progressive city government. Clean air and clean water are qualities that Eugeneans value.

Within Eugene are more than 70 parks, gardens, athletic fields and recreation facilities to provide open space and organized programs for all ages. Dozens of miles of bike paths, jogging trails, hiking trails and river walks enable citizens and visitors to take advantage of the area's natural assets.

The University of Oregon contributes immeasurably to the life of the city, bringing an continuous schedule of major cultural, educational and sports activities to the area. Known as "Track Town USA, Eugene is the host city for the 2008 and 2012 Olympic Team Trails, Track and Field, to be held at historic Hayward Field, on the UO campus.

There are also many indoor cultural, leisure, education and entertainment activities available year around. For example, the nationally-acclaimed Hult Center for the Performing Arts is home to eight resident performing arts companies. It houses two beautiful performance spaces, the 2,500-seat Silva Concert Hall and the intimate 500-seat Soreng Theater that enable Eugeneans to enjoy a broad spectrum of entertainment from opera to rock concerts. In addition, there is an award-winning visual art gallery and an attractive rehearsal hall/multipurpose space.

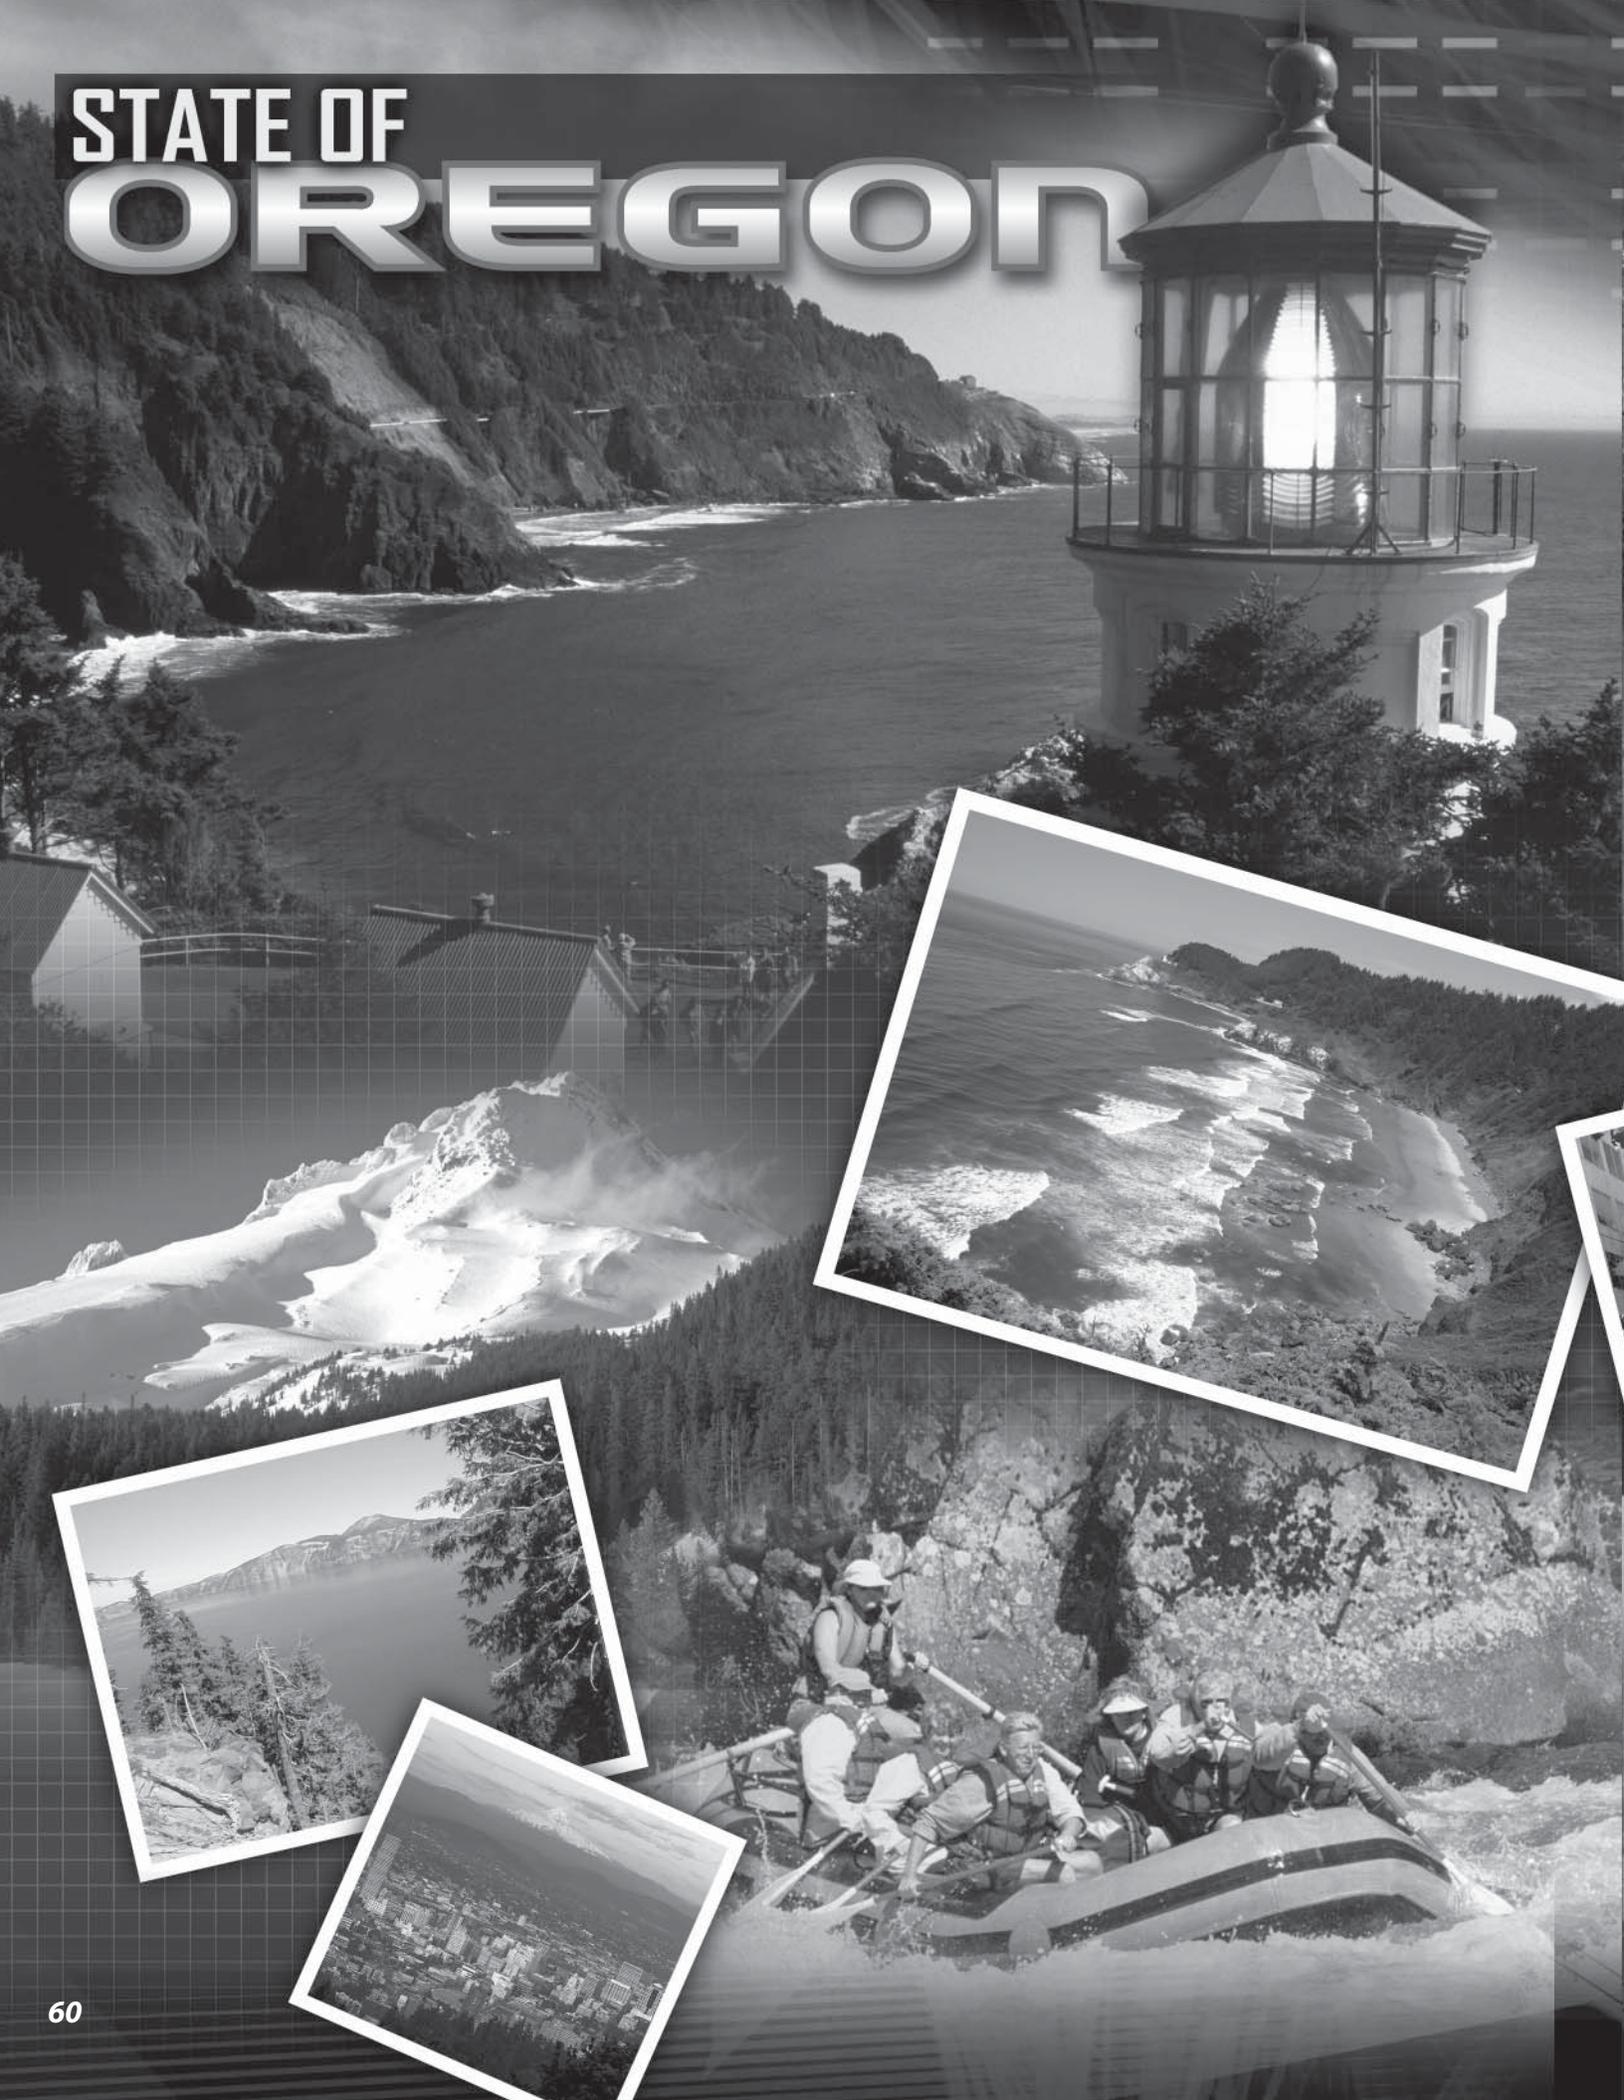

Historically, Eugene was a timber town. More recently, the area has diversified its economy. The Eugene area now has more than 10,000 businesses. Major employers include government and education, health care providers, forest-product companies, high-tech industries, and recreational vehicle manufacturers.

Eugene has all the amenities of a major city and the ambience of a small, unhurried town. Oregon's largest city, Portland, at more than a half-million residents, is just an hour-and-a-half drive away.

Sunset magazine selected Eugene one of the five top college towns in the West, Cosmopolitan said Eugene is one of the eight great college towns in the nation and Money magazine has rated Eugene-Springfield among the best six U.S. cities in which to live. Eugene is consistently ranked as one of the most "bicycle-friendly cities and in 2006 was recently named the nation's number one green city by Green Guide.

There is ample shopping in Eugene's downtown, the Valley River Center mall, Oakway Center, the Gateway Mall in Springfield, as well as other retail centers. Hundreds of clubs and organizations invite memberships and participation. There is skiing in the mountains or exploring the natural beauty of the famous Oregon Coast.

STATE OF OREGON

O

Oregon is lofty snow-covered mountains and white, sandy beaches. It is fertile green valleys and plains. Oregon has the most up-to-date cities amid hamlets reminiscent of early frontier days. The state is raging rivers, trickling brooks, mountain lakes, dramatic deserts and the powerful Pacific Ocean.

If America is a land of immigrants, Oregon is the end of the rainbow for people who traveled west and found a land too beautiful and promising to leave. There's an overpowering presence of things green in Oregon. The grass is green. The valleys are green. The towering trees are green. Everything is fresh, alive, growing. Then, too, there are the beaches. Miles of pure, white sand. And the mountains ... Hood, Bachelor, the Three Sisters and more. You can ski the slopes and hike the trails. To some there's a bit of paradise in fishing a mountain-fed lake. In Oregon, some people gaze out their living room window to the majesty of a snow-capped peak.

Oregon's rivers share in the magnetism. There's the mighty Columbia, starting as a trickle in Canada before building to one of the nation's most scenic waterways as it races to the ocean, defining the Oregon and Washington boundary. The salmon-crowded Rogue River in southern Oregon draws its share of sportsmen, as well as sight-seers. For others, no river matches the McKenzie, which meets the scenic Willamette in Eugene on its meandering journey through Oregon's evergreen forests.

To most residents, a large part of Oregon's magic stems from the fact that their jobs and homes are right in the middle of nature's giant playground. Recreation is only a small stride from your doorstep. Recreation here isn't a weekend thing or 50 weeks of backbreaking work for two weeks of vacation half a world away. It's available seven days a week in Oregon.

The state's recreation pursuits are rewarding and educationally stimulating for University of Oregon students. In the Eugene area, the recreational diversity is almost limitless. There is snow skiing and backpacking in the nearby Cascade Mountains. Water skiing is just minutes away. White water float trips down rushing mountain streams are a common undertaking. Bike paths are everywhere, and there are almost 50,000 bikes in Eugene alone — equalling one bike for every two people. Dubbed Track City U.S.A., it's unquestionably the running capital of the world, and jogging trails abound.

Fishing is one of Oregon's most popular sports. The Pacific Ocean and deep-sea fishing for ocean salmon is an hour away. And, the rainbow trout greet anglers in the McKenzie every spring. Oregon is a fisherman's paradise, capable of measuring up to the wildest fish stories.

On the ruggedly beautiful and uncrowded beaches of the Oregon Coast, beach campfires and nighttime hot dog roasts signal a pleasant good evening to splashing, Frisbee tossing and beach browsing of the day. There are oceanside crab feeds and beachcombing along Oregon's 400 miles of rugged shoreline. Private coves and inlets beg to be explored.

Golf is played at a feverish pitch by young and old Oregonians alike. The state has more golf courses per capita than any other U.S. state. Every inch of the 400-mile coast line is publicly-owned. Oregonians live next to 227 state parks and 13 national forests.

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT
15th Year
Harvard '62, Oxford '64, California '67

Dave Frohnmayer was appointed President of the University of Oregon, the state's Association of American Universities flagship institution, on July 1, 1994.

He formerly served as dean of the University of Oregon School of Law, as Oregon's Attorney General, as a member of the Oregon House of Representatives, and as a law professor and legal counsel to the President of the University of Oregon. As Attorney General, he argued and won six of seven cases before the United States Supreme Court, the most cases and best record of any contemporary state attorney general.

During his first decade as president, the University increased its enrollment to a record 20,200 in 2004; finished its largest ever fund-raising campaign raising $255 million; and began Campaign Oregon: Transforming Lives with a goal of $600 million. The University became a founding member of the Association of Pacific Rim Universities; hosted the annual meeting of the Association of American Universities; and completed construction projects totaling nearly $307,000,000, including three new student housing projects, the William F. Knight Law Center, a renovation and addition to the Knight Library, the Jordan Schnitzer Museum of Art, Autzen Stadium, and the Lillis Business Complex, and the construction of a new Student Recreation Center and Zebrafish Stock Center.

The University also added a host of new centers and institutes, including the Lewis Center for Neuroimaging, the Oregon Center for Optics, the Institute on Violence and Destructive Behavior, and the Center for Diversity and Community; doubled the federal grants awarded annually; and added nineteen new degree programs, including bachelor's degrees in biochemistry and ethnic studies and a master of fine arts degree in dance. The undergraduate program was assessed and revitalized under the leadership of the provost through the campus-wide Process for Change. And, the football team went to the Rose Bowl, the University published the internationally acclaimed Second Edition of the Atlas of Oregon, and 396 new tenure track faculty were hired.

Frohnmayer is the first native Oregonian to be president of any large research university in the state. He was born in Medford. He and his wife, Lynn, are founders of the Fanconi Anemia Research Fund, Inc., and he is one of the founding directors of the National Marrow Donor Program.

He graduated magna cum laude from Harvard College, attended Oxford University on a Rhodes Scholarship, and received his law degree from the University of California at Berkeley. He has received honorary degrees from Willamette University and the University of Portland and is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Each year since being named president, Frohnmayer has taught a seminar for freshman on "Theories of Leadership."

STATE BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION

The Oregon State Board of Higher Education, the statutory governing board of the seven-campus Oregon State System of Higher Education, is composed of 11 members appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Oregon State Senate. Eight lay members are appointed for four-year terms, one faculty member is appointed for a two-year term and two members are students appointed for two-year terms. Current board members and the date their terms expire are as follows:

Kirby Dyess, Beaverton, 2008 (President)
Donald Blair, Portland, 2008 (VP)	Dr. Dalton Miller-Jones, Portland, 2008
Hannah Fisher, Portland, 2009	Dr. Rosemary Powers, LaGrande, 2009
Brian Fox, Asland, 2009	Preston Pulliams, Portland, 2008

ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS
29th Year
Oregon '62, San Francisco '80

Former University vice president Dan Williams is in the fourth year of his assignment as assistant to the president for intercollegiate athletics, and serves as a valuable consultant to athletics director Pat Kilkenny.

Prior to his retirement from full-time duties in the summer of 2005, Williams served as vice president for administration, a position he had held since 1983. Among his many duties, Williams directly supervised intercollegiate athletics.

Williams also presided over the department as director of athletics for 11 months in 1994-95, a period that will be remembered as one of unparalleled success with an appearance in the Rose Bowl and NCAA bids in both men's and women's basketball.

He selected his successor in May 1995 with the appointment of Bill Moos as athletics director and presided over an extensive study that resulted in the decision to add women's soccer, in a concerted effort of increasing the opportunity for women to participate and compete in intercollegiate athletics.

A political science major, the Astoria native graduated from Oregon in 1962, also serving as ASUO student body president his senior year. He received his master's degree in public administration from the University of San Francisco in 1980. Prior to coming to Oregon as director of housing and associate dean of students in 1980, he was a student affairs officer at Stanford University.

Williams serves on the Board of Directors of Oregon Forest Resources Institute, Volunteers in Medicine Clinic, Liberty Bank and Bi-Mart Corporation. He also serves as a consultant to the Papé Group. His community service activities include membership on the Oregon Health Services Commission.

Williams and his wife, Maureen, are the parents of three children.

FACULTY REPRESENTATIVE
21st Year
Kansas State '66, Stanford '72

The University of Oregon's faculty athletic representative is James O'Fallon, a member of the School of Law faculty since 1981.

As the Frank Nash professor at Oregon, O'Fallon teaches constitutional law and jurisprudence.

The native of Gunnison, Colo., and graduate of Kansas State University earned his law degree from Stanford in 1972. He passed the California bar exam in 1973, after which, he served as a law clerk for the Ninth Circuit's United States Court of Appeals.

Prior to coming to Oregon, O'Fallon served on the law faculties at the University of Richmond and the University of Detroit, and was a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellow at Harvard.

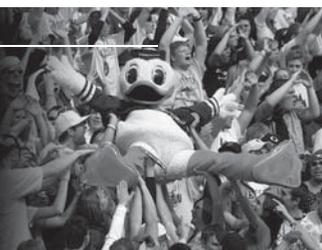

In addition to functioning on behalf of the university president and registrar to maintain institutional accountability and record keeping, he acts as the voting delegate in all NCAA and Pacific-10 Conference meetings and verifies academic eligibility for all of Oregon's student-athletes.

His scholarly work, including a path-breaking article on Marbury v. Madison, focuses on constitutional history and theory and philosophy.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR
Second Year
Oregon

A new era in University of Oregon athletics was ushered in with the introduction of Patrick J. Kilkenny as the Ducks' 10th director of athletics on February 14, 2007.

The 56-year-old Heppner, Ore., native may be relatively new to the world of intercollegiate athletic administration, yet few individuals have displayed the passion for a program or have been more actively involved with an institution on all levels than Kilkenny. Furthermore, he has demonstrated the leadership in the private business sector that equates with successfully managing the elements of a multi-million dollar collegiate athletic department in addition to already developing the rapport with numerous supporters of the university.

The former chairman and chief executive officer of the San Diego-based Arrowhead General Insurance Agency (1984-2006) built his business into a nationwide organization with written premiums of nearly $1 billion when he sold the company in 2006.

In addition to his extensive business background, Kilkenny has a long history of involvement with the University of Oregon. Since attending the school as an undergraduate from 1970-73, he has served on the university's Athletic Department Advisory Board in addition to the Board of Trustees for the University of Oregon Foundation.

In addition, Kilkenny has served on the University of California San Diego Athletic Advisory Board and the San Diego State University Athletic Director's Cabinet. He also has served on the board of St. Vincent de Paul and currently serves on the board of directors of the San Diego International Sports Council. He was recently honored as 2006 Man of the Year by that organization for his contributions to sports in the San Diego area.

Kilkenny initiated his career in business as Western Regional Manager of Central West/Puritan Insurance Company (a subsidiary of General Electric Credit Corp.) from 1974-79 before becoming president of The Managing General Agency in Seattle in 1980. He sold the insurance business four years later to purchase Arrowhead.

Over the years he has focused much of his attention on numerous charitable endeavors such as the creation of the AGIA Foundation, which raises money for Fanconi Anemia research as well as St. Vincent de Paul.

In his first full year at the Oregon helm, Kilkenny was chosen to serve on the Pacific-10 Conference's committees overseeing revenue sharing, the men's basketball tournament and bowls.
